Cat Island

Cat Island was once a nudist colony.

Considered the first of its kind in the U.S., Cat Island was settled in the early 1930s to create a nudist colony. It only lasted a couple of years. An article from the 1930s in The Augusta Herald touted the colony as a 'Sylvan Sanctuary on Beaufort Isle' and included photos. A little blue house on the small island still marked the spot of their site until 2004.
